THE FOUR QUESTIONS

The Four Questions help us understand why the seder night is different from all other nights. Draw a line from the things we do everyday to the special things we do on Passover.

Try these “eggs-periments” at home

The Science Room

1. TURNING EGGS INTO RUBBER

For this activity, you will need a raw egg, vinegar and a small plastic glass. Have your child place the egg in the glass. Then have him pour vinegar over the egg until it is covered. Set the glass aside for two days. Pour off the vinegar and dry off the egg with a paper towel. Have your child squeeze the egg. Have him notice that the egg now feels and acts like rubber.

2. EGG DETECTIVE

In this experiment, your children will be trying to discover which of two eggs are raw and which is hard boiled.

- Set out two eggs. One raw and one hard boiled.
- Ask your child if she can tell which egg is hard boiled (without cracking the egg).
- Have your child try, smelling it, lifting it, shaking it, rolling it, laying it on it's side and spinning it.
- Finally, have her hold the eggs up and spin them like tops.
- Have her notice that one egg spins nicely and one flops over.
- Explain that hard boiled eggs can spin easily because they are solid inside, while raw eggs wobble because they are liquid inside.

FIND THE AFIKOMEN

We must find the afikomen to finish our seder. All of the letters are hidden in this picture. Color them as you find them.
